ABSTRACT

Violence against women and children exalts this because there are several factors in the emergence of cases of sexual violence against women and children, namely the easy access to social media which can provoke the desire of perpetrators to commit crimes against women and children, the rise of promiscuity and others. regarding collaborative governance in protecting cases of violence for women and children in the city of Batam. This study aims to determine Collaborative Governance and the inhibiting factors in protecting women and children in Batam City. This research uses a qualitative descriptive type approach with primary and secondary data as sources of data. The research uses Ansell and Gash theories, namely Face-to-Face Dialogue, Building Trust, Commitment to the Process, Shared Understanding, and Interim Results. As for a brief explanation of the 5 Indicators of Face-to-Face Dialogue that has been carried out optimally both directly and indirectly, Building Trust there has been a form of mutual trust between actors, Commitment to the Process of each actor has been carried out in accordance with their respective duties and functions, Mutual Agreement is still lacking because there are often disagreements, and Interim results have not been achieved because the rights of victims of sexual violence are still not fulfilled and data on victims of sexual violence is increasing. Then, the inhibiting factors of collaborative governance in the protection of women and children in the city of Batam are lack of budget for handling victims of sexual violence, working hours, and minimal community participation. The conclusion in this study is that there is a Collaborative Governance process from 6 informants namely the Head of the Regional Technical Implementation Unit (UPTD) for the Protection of Women and Children (PPA), Psychology, Victim Companion, Kanid 6 for the Protection of Women and Children, Satreskrim Polresta Barelang, Leader of the Faye House which has been running optimally.
